About

Nutraceuticals are referred to the food products that have a medicinal benefit including prevention and treatment of disease – in addition to the basic nutritional value found in foodstuff. The nutraceutical industry encompasses three main segments which include functional foods, dietary supplements, and herbal/natural products.

The relevance of nutraceuticals can be understood as they are new sector with lower R&D costs, new revenue sources, most purchases are by consumers, less onerous regulatory requirements, fast growing, source of differentiation & higher margins and accepted channel for new products.

Nutraceuticals offer opportunities for pharmaceutical companies to make their products more consumer-oriented, and for food producers to create brands with a medical image. India is currently a nascent market for nutraceuticals. At present, the nutraceuticals industry in India is about USD 2.2 billion, and is expected to grow at 20% to USD 6.1 billion by 2020. Both MNCs as well as domestic companies in the pharmaceutical and food and beverage space have tested the market with a variety of launches, with some success.

Organizer's Message

Dr. Monica Bhatia
Managing Director, CIMS Medica

Globally, nutraceuticals are gaining prominence and becoming a part of the average consumer's daily diet. In India, the market for dietary supplements, sports nutrition products, food beverages, and weight loss products that are broadly clubbed in nutraceuticals is beginning to pick up speed since the Indians are becoming conscious about their health and external appearance.

Furthermore, with the increase in life expectancy and subsequent increase in lifestyle diseases, nutraceuticals have emerged as a necessity for consumers. In developing nations such as India, mortality due to nutrition-related factors is nearly 40%, underscoring the need for nutraceutical products to balance the nutritional intake of the individual. The trend towards preventive healthcare has been noticed by pharmaceutical companies, which have diversified into the production of nutraceuticals.

CIMS Medica organizes the Fourth edition of the 'Nutrition and Wellness 2018' to recognize the excellence in nutraceutical and healthcare industry with an aim to generate a positive competitive environment amongst the pharmaceutical and nutraceutical industry, that will result in better delivery of services.
